About This Report

The 2014 Federal Employee Viewpoint Survey (FEVS) provides employees of the Federal workforce the opportunity to influence change by submitting feedback about their work environment, leadership, and many other aspects of the organization. Feedback from employees is critical to carrying out the mission of each agency, as it identifies what needs to change, what is working well and where there may be some uncertainty or downward trends. This year, the Agency Management Report (AMR) was designed to streamline and simplify the process of analyzing your results and identifying the most critical areas of concern in your agency.

What's New in the AMR this Year?

Each section of the 2014 AMR was designed to help you analyze your FEVS results and quickly identify the most crucial areas of concern. One section, the Decision Aid, has been redesigned and is sorted by increases, decreases, and items that have not changed since 2013, providing a straightforward way to quickly identify where your agency has improved or declined in the past year. Several other sections have also been streamlined or enhanced, and are outlined in the next section. The guidelines in the call-out boxes below are important to keep in mind as you navigate through the AMR, as they help in understanding the way the results are displayed and highlighted in various sections of the report.

Understanding Your AMR Results

Percent Positive The sum of two positive categories (e.g., Strongly Agree/Agree)

Percent Negative The sum of two negative categories (e.g., Strongly Disagree/Disagree)

AMR Rules of Thumb

65 percent positive or higher is considered a strength

35 percent negative or higher is considered a challenge

30 percent neutral or higher suggests uncertainty, presenting an opportunity for communication This section provides suggestions on how to use your FEVS results and includes examples for taking action to help your agency meet its strategic human capital management goals.

Getting Started

Agencies receive many FEVS reports each year, so it can be confusing to know where to start. One suggested starting point is to adopt a strategy based in an action planning framework, which means looking for improvements you have made in the past year while also examining areas of decline. To help you get started, several steps are outlined below, including references to sections of the Agency Management Report (AMR) that you may find useful in helping you to focus on the most critical issues.

Step 1: Use your AMR to identify issues.

Your AMR provides the tools that can be useful in analyzing your results to find issues most critical to your agency. One way to identify issues is to compare your agency's 2014 results to last year, and the Decision Aid- Decreases section provides a quick way to view all of your results that have decreased since 2013. There are many ways to look at your results, and the following sections of the AMR can be valuable resources in illustrating the state of your agency:

Respondent Overview

The Respondent Overview provides a quick snapshot of some interesting demographic results from the respondent population. It offers valuable insight into the makeup of who is responding in your agency and can help inform and guide your recruiting and retention efforts. For example, this section allows you to better understand the ratio of newer employees to seasoned employees who may be preparing for retirement. It is important to keep in mind that this is a survey respondent overview, and these percentages may not match up exactly to your agency's total population characteristics.

Top 10 Positive and Negative Items

Not only does this section display a brief overview of noteworthy results (for use in leadership briefings, agency communications, etc.), it also allows you to quickly determine if there are any underlying themes in the way employees responded to certain items. For example, your agency may want to prioritize issues around the workplace environment if multiple survey items related to this subject reside in the Top 10 Negative Items list.

Indices

The Engagement Index, Global Satisfaction and Human Capital Assessment and Accountability Framework (HCAAF) Indices provide agencies with consistent metrics for measuring progress toward objectives. This year, benchmarks were added to this section allowing for a more useful guide to understanding how your agency ranks compared to others and also promotes information sharing of best practices across agencies. For example, some of the top ranking agencies in the Engagement Index may have useful suggestions and insight into what has been most successful for their agency in terms of engaging the workforce. Similarly, your agency components are listed in each index section to allow you to look across your own agency and determine whether some components are scoring much higher than others.

Decision Aid

This section is useful in helping you easily identify the most critical issues in your agency as well as recognize where your agency has improved since 2013. The Decision Aid has been redesigned into three sections this year to help you focus your attention on improvements and declines in your results since 2013:

Increases: Contains all items that increased since 2013

Decreases: Contains all items that decreased since 2013

No Change: Contains all items that did not change since 2013

Appendix A and Appendix B

The appendices give you an opportunity to more thoroughly understand your workforce by displaying item-level results. Appendix A shows how well your agency scored relative to others in the government. Scanning the graphs can indicate how your agency is generally performing as well as help you identify particularly strong or weak areas. Appendix B shows a full breakdown of the survey's demographic items, providing a more in-depth summary than the Respondent Overview.

Step 2: Develop your goals for improvement.

To develop your goals for improvement, you should consider issues that are most critical to your agency and how these issues relate to your strategic goals. It is also important to focus on issues that will provide both short-term, visible, measurable results, and those that will require long-term perspective.

Step 3: Identify your team.

This is a crucial step, as your team can make or break your efforts. It is important that each member of your team is actively engaged in the process. Identifying your team involves not only personnel selection, but identifying and pulling together your available resources while being aware of staff interests, capabilities, and agency budget and resources.

Step 4: Develop your plan for action.

Once you've identified your goals and your team, you should develop a list of actions that must be taken to reach your goals. Assign staff responsibilities for each action and keep in mind timeframes and start dates, end dates, and measurable milestones. Make sure you get approval for the actions you must take to achieve your agency goals. Remember that leadership buy-in, engagement, and communication is critical to your success.

Step 5: Implement your plan.

There are many ways to publicize and communicate your intentions to employees, such as all-hands meetings, announcements, intranet/web updates, and social media, to name a few. After your plan is communicated and you have leadership support, you are ready to launch the plan.

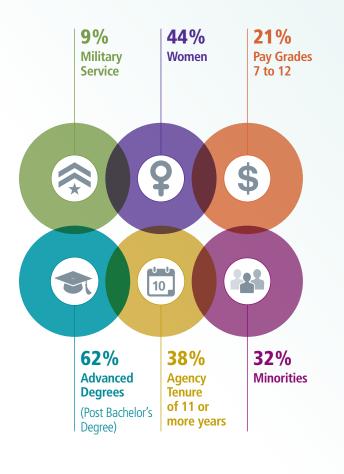

Step 6: Monitor and evaluate the results.

In addition to measuring your progress along the way and evaluating the success of your plan, it is important that you communicate both progress toward goals and final outcomes.

Respondent Overview

What are the Unique Characteristics of Your Respondents?

The figures below provide an overview of who responded to the survey. This snapshot in time focuses on respondents who have served in the military, women and minorities, and those who have earned an advanced degree to name a few. Engagement Index: Benchmarks & Component Scores

Because the FEVS is an assessment of organizational climate, the Engagement Index does not directly evaluate an employee's level of engagement. Therefore, instead of measuring "states" of engagement such as focused attention and dedication to completing assignments, this index concentrates on factors that lead to an engaged workforce (e.g., supporting employee development, communicating agency goals). Below, you can see where your agency's Engagement Index score ranks (out of 37 departments/large agencies) and how it compares to the governmentwide average. The names of the highest-ranked agencies are listed to facilitate the sharing of information, such as best practices.

This table displays the Engagement Index score for each component in your agency as well as the scores for the three engagement factors, which can facilitate information-sharing within your agency.

Why is it Important to Look at Your Increases?

The items in this section are sorted by greatest to smallest increase in percent positive ratings. The items are sorted to allow you to quickly and easily identify where your agency has made improvements since 2013.

How Should the Legend Icons be Used?

The legend icons provide helpful context for your list of items that have increased. For example, while an item may have increased five percentage points since 2013, it may still be considered a "challenge" if the percent negative is 35 percent or higher. These icons show you whether there is more work to be done as well as highlight celebration-worthy findings such as "new strengths." New strengths are items that have crossed the 65 percent positive or higher threshold since the 2013 FEVS.

Decision Aid: Decreases

Why is it Important to Look at Your Decreases?

The items in this section are sorted by greatest to smallest decrease in percent positive ratings. The items are sorted to allow you to easily and quickly identify where your results have dropped since 2013.

How Should the Legend Icons be Used?

The legend icons provide helpful context for your list of items that have decreased. For example, an item that decreased by only two percentage points might not seem particularly noteworthy; however, if the item is also identified as a past strength or challenge, you may want to take action to prevent further decreases.

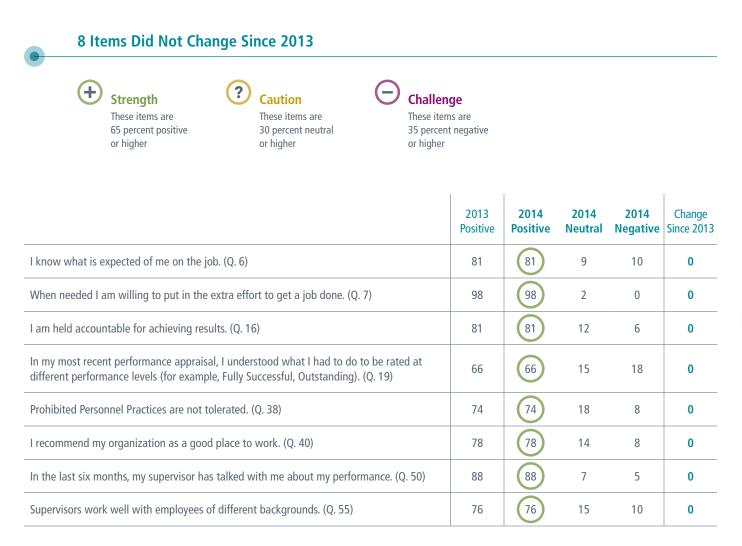

Why is it Important to Look at Items that Have Not Changed?

Your percent positive results for these items have not changed since 2013. These are items that your agency is maintaining, which can be either a positive, neutral, or negative finding. For example, an item with low percent positive results over several years is a strong indication of a need for focused action. You may also want to consider changing or updating your approach to addressing these issues if the item has been the focus of attention in the past. On the other hand, a trend of stable, high percent positive ratings is a finding that should be celebrated. Look at these items individually to determine whether they may be areas of concern for your agency.

How Should the Legend Icons be Used?

The legend icons provide helpful context for your list of items that have not changed. While these items have not increased or decreased, they still may be causes for celebration or concern depending on the percent positive, negative, and neutral ratings.

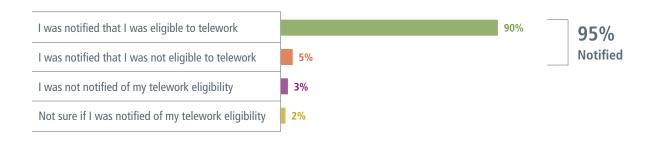

How do Employees Rate Your Workplace Flexibilities?

Work/Life programs are designed to help support employees in balancing the typical demands of the traditional workplace. Many employees find that the telework option allows them more flexibility in scheduling and assists them in meeting the needs of the agency. In addition, agencies have found that telework is both an attractive option when attempting to recruit and retain the best employees and an important tool that can be utilized by the agency to address work space issues and the cost of transit. Your agency's work/life program participation and satisfaction results are displayed in the following figures.

Since the Federal Government has emphasized the importance of employee engagement in recent years, this section provides a more in-depth analysis of the conditions that lead to engagement. The Engagement Index is broken down by three demographic categories: generations, agency tenure, and the five most common occupational families in your agency. This section will help you determine if parts of your workforce are lacking the conditions needed for engagement, which can help guide attention to specific groups. For example, if newer employees have lower scores on the Engagement Index, you might consider the possibility that this group does not know what is expected of it on the job (Q. 6). Essentially, you should look at breakdowns of each item in the index if groups have substantially different scores. Please refer to the Engagement Index section of this report for additional information.

Generations
		Engagement Index
Traditionalists	(69 and older)	78%
Baby Boomers	(50-68)	72%

For each item, your agency's percent positive response is shown on a 0 to 100 scale, with the triangular arrow indicating where your agency falls. The gray bars represent the range of scores for the 37 departments and large agencies surveyed, where Army, Army Corps of Engineers, Air Force, Navy, Marine Corps, and Other Defense agencies/activities are rolled into Department of Defense. To understand how well your agency performed compared to others, focus on the location of the triangle within the gray bar. If the triangle is toward the right side of the bar, then your agency was above average on that item. If it is at the right edge of the bar, then you had the highest percent positive response for that item. Additionally, you can numerically compare your percent positive to the governmentwide average listed to the right of each item.
